EX-KAISER'S HOME IS PRETTIEST IN HOLLAND

SLOW-GOING DUTCH TOWN IS GLAD TO HAVE EX-EMPEROR AS CITIZEN.

Doorn, Holland, Oct. 17.—"The House of Doorn," as the estate recently purchased here by the former German Emperor has been called for centuries, lies right in the midst of this clean, slow-moving little Dutch village, whose 3,000 or so inhabitants, while not at all excited about it, are looking forward with considerable interest to numbering among their burghers one William Hohenzollern of Prussia.

The villagers, along with most persons in this section of the country, believe that he is coming here to settle down for life. If that be his intention he has selected as a voluntary substitute for St. Helena, one of the prettiest spots in Holland. There is nothing in the estate he has purchased or in the surrounding community to suggest a place of exile.

Doorn, like Amerongen, is one of the few villages in Holland located on ground that seems to be above the sea level. Instead of canal and dyke the landscape is flat and occupied by a sleepy looking black and white cows and pumpkins, flat windmills which form the unchanging scenery of most of Holland, the country about Doorn, while generally flat, to be sure, has here and there a faint suggestion of a hillside, the white stone or brick roads wind quite frequently through forest land—most of it the private preserves of the Dutch nobility.

Hundreds of automobiles pass through Doorn daily during the summer season, for it is on the main road from Amsterdam and Rotterdam to Arnhem, which passes the Hohenzollern estate. From this road, through a long avenue of stately trees is visible one side of "The House of Doorn." There is also almost a constant procession of bicycling tourists, and the two main hotels with their white-painted little veranda cafes, and the "pensions," or boarding houses, do a rushing business all through the season. In fact, coming of summer tourists seems to be Doorn's only means of livelihood.
The country for miles around is dotted with handsome villas, summer homes of wealthy people of Amsterdam and Rotterdam, and the more pretentious castles of the Dutch aristocracy, who live there all the year round, emerging daily from old time feudal castles for carriage rides behind slow but sure Dutch horses driving by solemn looking coachmen in tall black hats. Some of the nobility have automobiles and nearly every Hollander has his bicycle.

Doorn is quite easy of access to the ordinary tourist. One travels by express train to Utrecht, a fifteen or twenty minutes ride to the station Driebergen. There he boards a train of small but comfortable cars drawn by a steam locomotive only one size larger than those operated for children in American amusement parks, and this miniature railroad carries him the highway, where its narrow track of the automobile road, toward Doorn and Amerongen. It is a thirty minute ride from Driebergen and the train, at the melancholy signal of a tin horn blow by the conductor stops within a hundred feet of the entrance to the estate.

There are no guards about the estate now nor wall nor moats to protect the house from the curious passersby. It is forbidden, however, to walk in the 200-acre park without special permission, which is not being granted, just now, as Herr Hohenzol-lern's furniture and art treasures, 51 big wardrobes, valued at something over $4,000,000 is being stored and placed preparatory to the moving out of the Baroness Van Hecmstra de Beaufort, on November 1, and the moving in of the former Emperor late in December or early in January.

The FEDERAL LAND BANK

OF COLUMBIA, S. C.

Bulloch County Farmers will be informed that they can now obtain loans on real estate in Bulloch county from the Federal Land Bank, by applying to GEORGE L. WILLIAMS, Secretary-Treasurer.

THE METTER NATIONAL FARM LOAN ASSN., Metter, Georgia

Loans are made on the basis of not over 50 per cent of the value of the land. The rate of interest is five and one-half per cent, with from five to forty years term.

No commission is charged. The applicant pays the actual expense, such as examining the land and title.
For example, we recently negotiated a loan in Candler county for $6,000 within nine days from date of application at a total cost of $97.00 to the applicant. There are no renewal charges—not one cent extra if you desire the loan to run—and there is no bonus charged should you desire to pay the loan before maturity. A small amount of the principal is paid each year, and after the fifth year the loan can be retired in payments to suit the borrower.

The Metter National Farm Loan Association embraces the counties of Candler, Emanuel and Bulloch and is one of the largest Associations of its kind in the state of Georgia, and all farmers desiring real estate loans are invited to use the facilities of this Bank.

STATESBORO PRESENTS KEY TO SAVANNAHANS

SAVANNAH VISITORS IMPRES-SED BY INFINITE VARIETIES OF EXHIBITS.

(By Roy Neal, Editor Morning News)

Statesboro presented its key to almost four-score Savannahans yesterday on Savannah Day of the Bulloch County Fair. The Savannah crowd did not make a big splash in States-boro because even eighty of them were too few in the big crowds on the streets and at the fair grounds, but the welcome they received, with the usual, or rather unusual, Statesboro hospitality, could not have been more cordial. Mayor Rountree and Representative Williams extended the official hand of greeting for the city and county and there was not a moment in which the traditional friendship of Savannah and Statesboro was not in evidence. So many Statesboro and Savannah people are related to each other, or know each other, or have familiar relations with each other, that it is just like being at home when a Savannah man goes to Statesboro.

The big thing, of course, was the fair, which is a real one. And the features of the fair were the exhibits prepared by the women of Bulloch county, and the very fine collection of hogs. If every county goes in for hog hogs as Bulloch has done, it will not be so very many years until Georgia stands at the top of the list among pork-producing states. Two Bulloch-raised pigs were sold on Friday for a total of $1,000. One was sold for $500, and was raised by Carl Watson,

SUPERIOR COURT NOW IN SESSION

ANNOUNCEMENT OF ADJOURN-ED TERM TO BE HELD NEXT DECEMBER OR JANUARY.

When Bulloch superior court adjourns tomorrow afternoon, it will be subject to reconvene in adjourned term in December or January, according to announcement made yesterday by Judge Lovett. The date for this adjourned term will be designated definitely at a later day.

The regular term of the court convened Monday morning, and has been engaged continuously since in a more or less continuous grind of justice.
The grand jury was organized by the selection of T. B. Cox as foreman and A. E. Temple as clerk. That body has managed to keep itself fairly busy though there has not been the rush of business that sometimes attends upon the court. A number of indictments have been returned in murder cases, and misdemeanor cases have been heard and verdicts rendered.
The time of the court has been occupied up to adjournment last night with the hearing of marital troubles and other civil cases. A large number of divorces have been granted.

The criminal docket was taken up upon assembling of court this morning, and it is expected that the trial of criminal cases will occupy the remainder of the term.

Judge A. B. Lovett, the new judge of the Ogeechee circuit, is presiding for the first time in the court here.
It is not his first court, however, and he works like a veteran. His charge to the grand jury was heard with peculiar interest Monday morning, and while in no wise spectacular, was pointed enough to attract favorable comment.

At the hour of adjournment last night, the following cases had been disposed of: Attorney-General Palmer, vs.
Raines Hardware Company, vs.
Eugenia Golden, levy and claim; dismissed.
D. Strickland vs. J. E. Brown, suit on note; verdict for plaintiff.
Lucy Atwood vs. B. L. Hendrix and others, suit on land; verdict for defendant.

CONGRESS OVERRIDES PRESIDENT'S VETO

VOTE STOOD 176 TO 55 FOR EN-FORCEMENT OF PROHIBITION LAW.

Washington, Oct. 27.—President Wilson unexpectedly vetoed the prohibition enforcement bill today and within three hours the house had re-passed it over his veto by a vote 176 to 55. The total vote was barely more than a majority of the entire membership.

Dry leaders in the senate immediately began laying plans to repass the bill there. They expect to act unanimously on the bill tomorrow, claiming that they have votes to put it through. They expect to act on it by Wednesday at the latest.

The president refused to sign the bill because it included the enforcement of war-time prohibition.
The object of war-time prohibition the president said in his veto, had been satisfied and "sound public policy makes clear the reason and necessity for its repeal."

It would not be difficult, the president held, for congress to deal separately with the two issues.
The veto hit congress unexpectedly.

The house, getting on its feet again, deserted its leader, who wanted to defer consideration until Thursday so as to round up all the dry members.
But the drys swept into the chamber and showed there was overwhelming sentiment among them to give the government ample weapons for dealing with the liquor traffic.

Nobody had really professed to know the president would veto the bill. Republicans and democrats alike and the countless multitudes that had sorrowfully watched the passing of the bars, thought it would become law without his signature.

But the president, propped up in bed, dictated and then signed a veto message and sent it along to congress, without worrying, apparently, what congress might do.

With repassage of the law by the house and the prospect of the same time happening in the senate, hope of the big "wet" spell that would run over the Christmas season vanished.

Prohibition leaders predicted refusal of the house to accept the president's veto and that the bill would pass in this and many other generations.

An overwhelming vote to pass the veto was cast by members from the southern states. Forty-eight of them voted to override the veto, while eight voted to sustain the president.

The vote, coming in the evening after the customary hour of adjournment, found several members absent, there being scarcely more than one-half of the members voting on the final call.

One hope remains for the talk of "wet spell" before prohibition becomes effective by constitutional amendment in January.

was not in order helped quiet the situation.
The wrangle started again when Representative Walsh, republican, of Massachusetts, moved to table the Volstead motion. Most of the members did not seem to know what this meant, but it was evident that Mr.
Walsh was trying to force an immediate vote.

RAISING FINE HOGS IN BULLOCH COUNTY

AUCTION SALE DRAWS MANY BUYERS FROM OTHER SEC-TIONS OF THE COUNTRY.

The display of fine hogs at the county fair last week was at once the wonder and admiration of every visitor to the fair.
Not only were strangers struck with wonder that Bulloch county should have such animals, but the home people also were struck with the fact that hog raising had reached a point beyond their realization.

More than two hundred fine hogs, most of them bred in the county, were to be seen in the show pens. Some of these were for sale, and others were held beyond price by their owners.
The display was the best ever seen in the county, and the gate receipts were increased $2,000 for him here last Friday by an Indiana stock man, and again refused.

But there were sales made at the fair—big sales, Thursday a sale of Duroc Jerseys, grown by W. H. Smith, W. H. Kennedy, B. F. Woodward, Inman Foy and G. C. Coleman, sold quickly at fancy prices; and Friday there was a sale of Hampshires, from the stock farms of Messrs. M. R.
Atkins & Sons, W. A. Atkins, Joshua Smith and K. E. Watson, which set a new record for prices. In this sale one saw sold for $505 and another was close second at $500.

Buyers at both these sales were from various parts of the state and even from other states.

Bulloch county hog raisers are highly pleased with their beginning in the raising of pure bred hogs, and the industry is certain to grow. It is a contrast from a few years ago, when blooded hogs were unknown and were looked upon as a foolish fancy. The old time grower let his pigs come along for any ancestors they might select for themselves, and the result was a mass of swine, some till fattening time, when he put them in his fields and hoped they would make him some meat. Those pigs did well if they reached bacon size in two or three years. Today the farmers are growing pigs that will weigh 100 pounds at three months old, and two year old hogs were seen at the fair which weighed five hundred.

Bulloch county is coming to the front in hog raising.

METTS IS ACQUITTED OF MURDER CHARGE

JURY FINDS VERDICT OF NOT GUILTY AFTER DELIBERATION OF FEW HOURS.

After remaining out for the greater part of the afternoon, the jury trying Jack Metts for the slaying of Milledge Harling, colored, returned a verdict this evening of not guilty.
Metts was represented by Strange Measrs, F. T. Lanier and H. M. Jones assisting the solicitor general. The case was substantially fought, and the hearing of evidence was for arguments of attorneys occupied the entire morning.

Metts slew the negro at the Green ice plant one night during the summer while the negro was at work. It was charged by the prosecution that he was actuated by malice because the negro had recently quit his farm and come to town. The defense showed the negro had made threats against Metts' life, and that he was justified in acting in self-defense.

At the close of the Metts case, the trial of Tom Fountain for assault with intent to murder Buddie Akersman was taken up and is still in progress at the hour of going to press.

HOKE SMITH OUT WITH HIS OWN PARTY

SENATOR HITCHCOCK TREATY PLAN AS A "RIDICULOUS POSAL."

(Special Dispatch to The New York Evening Post.)

Washington, Oct. 27.--Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia kicked over the traces Friday, declared again that he would vote for the treaty for the evacuation and called Senator Hitchcock's scheme to throw the Democratic vote against the ratification of the treaty rather than support the proposed reservations "as ridiculous a proposal as any I have ever heard." Adherents of Senator Hitchcock countered by declaring that they did not need Smith's support, and could carry their program without him, but the Georgia Democrat's interview nevertheless gives a pretty good indication of the troubles in store for the administration in the senate.

"What do you think of Senator Hitchcock's plan?" was the question put to Senator Smith.

"I think it is ridiculous, as ridiculous as anything I ever heard," was the reply. "It is utterly indefensible from every point of view. There is not a trace of wisdom in it. He will simply alien himself and his supporters with Senator Borah and Senator Reed and will accomplish nothing by it."

"Do you think there are others in this minority that agree with you in this attitude?"

"Oh, yes. I think there are very few that don't agree with me. As far as I can judge from talking with the other Democratic senators about the cloakroom here, there are only a handful who will stand by Senator Hitchcock if he persists in his out-in-out anti-reservation attitude."

"From the start the real foes of this treaty have been divided into two groups--the Borahs and Johnsons, who wanted to destroy it utterly, and the people who said that not a jot or a tittle of it should be changed. Now we've licked the amendment group."

"What about the preamble?"

"I can see no objection to it. And the real reservation ought certainly to go through, providing that the United States is the sole judge of its obligations in case of impending withdrawal from the league. The rest I don't want to commit myself to definitely as yet in their present form, but strong reservation lines will certainly be adopted. My own particular object is to make sure that Congress shall assume no moral obligation whatever to enter into war at the bidding of the league of nations."

"What of the President's refusal to accept the treaty if the present reservation covering Article X is incorporated?"

Senator Smith's reply was emphatic and to the point, but not given for publication. His attitude is that this is primarily Congress's business and not the President's.

Senator Capper backed up Senator Lodge's prediction that the Republican reservation program would command united Republican support, with the possible exception of the vote of Senator McCumber. He also expected that Hoke Smith and Shreve would not be the only Democrats to vote with the Republicans, and that Senator Hitchcock, when the final showdown comes, would not risk assuming the blame for the defeat of the treaty.

The Democrats are plainly worried over the course of events and took counsel with each other as to just what effect a refusal to vote for the treaty with the contemplated reservations would have on the public opinion of the country. Most of them, in spite of the attitude of Senator Smith and his followers, are convinced that the present reservations do in all truth "cut the heart out of the covenant," at least so far as this country's participation in the league is concerned.

TREATY SUPPORTERS LOOK TO WILSON

WILL BE GOVERNED BY JUDGMENT OF PRESIDENT WHEN VOTE IS TAKEN.

Washington, Oct. 27.—President Wilson will be asked by his supporters in the senate to advise them how to vote if the Lodge reservations Americanizing the peace treaty are adopted.

Senator Hitchcock and a number of others among the administration men believe that the president will tell them to join with the irreconcilable republicans who will vote to reject the treaty. If a sufficient number of democrats should vote in this manner, the treaty probably will be killed.

The movement toward passing up to the president the final settlement of the democratic position with respect to how to vote after reservations are agreed to was launched today at a conference in Vice President Marshall's office attended by the vice president, Senator Hitchcock, Senator Swanson and Senator Pomerehne. The situation was discussed in great detail and the plan finally agreed upon was this:

Between the time when reservations are about to be agreed upon and the calling of the roll on the question of agreeing to the final settlement of the reservations, Senator Hitchcock and the others will ask the president to tell them exactly what he wants them to do. He will be asked to decide whether the treaty with the republican reservations should be ratified, or whether it would be better to allow the treaty to die and be replaced with a new treaty separately negotiated with Germany.

A prominent senator among the democrats exhibited today a poll of 39 senators who will vote to reject the treaty if the president continues to give the word to reject it. On the poll appears the names of 18 democrats and 21 republicans as follows:

Democrats—Culberson, Gray, Harrison, Hitchcock, Jones, of New Mexico; Kirby, Overman, Owen, Pittman, Reed, Sheppard, Smith of Georgia; Shields, Thomas, Underwood, Walsh of Massachusetts; and Williams.

Republicans—Ball, Borah, Brandegee, Curtis, Fall, France, Frelinghuysen, Gurnea, Johnson, of California; Knox, La Follette; McCormick, Moses, Newberry, Sutherland, Wadsworth, and Warren.

The senator who prepared this list wrote his own name upon it. He said his information as to how the individual senators will vote in the event the reservations prove too obnoxious to the president was obtained by him from senators in the cloak rooms. He declared, moreover, that in his opinion, this number represented only the minimum of senators who would oppose the treaty, if the president says so. A number of others, in the opinion of this senator, will follow the same program if it should come from the White House.

On the other hand, there have been some intimations that the president might take different ground and issue an appeal for ratification of the treaty with milder reservations than those now before the senate. The effect of such a move, if it should be made, would be nothing so far as the republicans are concerned as they are concerned, according to Senator Lodge. It would also be ineffective as to Senators Reed, Gora, Shields, Walsh of Massachusetts, Thomas and Smith of Georgia, all of whom will support strong reservations.

CONDITION OF WILSON IS FULLY EXPLAINED

HE CANNOT RESUME REINS OF NATIONAL GOVERNMENT FOR AT LEAST A MONTH.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Woodrow convalescent, sits up daily now in a big cheerful room full of flowers and sunlight.

It's at the southwest corner of the White House.

He's building up strength to tackle the knotty problems that have arisen in his month of illness.

But he's building slowly.

He knows much less of what's going on in the world than does any person who runs the government.

Because of his statements issued to save the dying round table and to forestall the coal strike, followed by his veto of the wartime prohibition enforcement act, many have the impression Wilson is taking up again the reins of government.

Such is not the case. He won't for at least another month.

When the cabinet has a problem that seems to demand Wilson's attention, it puts the matter up to Rear Admiral C. T. Grayson, the president's physician. If Grayson agrees to the necessity he resubmits the matter to the President.

Wilson senses the growing seriousness of some situations, and he chafes at times against the almost absolute isolation that cuts him off from the world outside.

At these times Grayson relieves a little, and permits discussion of executive matters. But the major part of the president's waking hours is spent in listening to Mrs. Wilson or Grayson read.

Poetry and detective stories are given preference, as the president is especially fond of both.

For about ten days now the president has been permitted to sit up for a short time each day. First he was propped up in bed, where he could look out the big windows at the south of his room across the White House grounds to the Washington monument and the Potomac River beyond.

After a couple of days of this he was permitted to spend a short time in one of the big, tapestry-covered easy chairs.

A brief daily digest of official business is presented to the president by Grayson or Mrs. Wilson. For the president's information, nothing more. Grayson sees that there is nothing in the digest that will unduly excite or arouse his patient.

The cabinet may be in extra session almost under the west wing without the president's knowing anything is stirring.

Blossoms enough for a flower show have been sent to the White House during the president's illness. Only a small part of them can be placed in the president's chamber. Mrs. Wilson sees to the arrangement and acknowledges their receipt.

Telegrams and letters from humble and high-born, though appreciated and acknowledged, have not been permitted to come to the president's attention. Later when he is fully well again he may see the list of those remembering him.

Postmaster General Burleson came to the White House last week with a number of things for the president's ear. He had to spill them into Grayson's ear instead. And Grayson did not pass on to the president a single one.

Legislatures of the fifteen states in question, do not meet in regular session until 1921 and unless special sessions are called the full woman vote for president cannot be polled until the next election in 1924.

States already having ratified the amendment are: Wisconsin, Michigan, Kansas, Ohio, New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Texas, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, Montana, Nebraska, Minnesota, New Hampshire and Utah.

"We have so completely satisfied ourselves that the amendment will be ratified that we have quit trying to convert to negroes and are devoting our time to bringing pressure on these governors to force them to call special sessions," said Miss Alice Paul, chairman of the National Woman's Party. "By exerting pressure from above and below we hope to squeeze these governors into submission."

Since the fight for ratification started President Wilson, Secretary Daniel, Attorney General Palmer and National Committee Chairman Cummings have urged Democratic governors whose states haven't ratified to do so and Democratic governors have taken similar action.

THE ladies were residents of Syl-vester, Ga., but had gone to Florida on a visit to a married daughter of Mrs. Huske. On the day of the tragedy they had visited an orange grove some distance from their home, crossing Withlacoochee river on the trip.

Returning after night, the party were being ferried across the river in a small boat when the youngest girl became excited and threw the other members of the party into confusion.

The boat was upset and the three ladies were drowned. Two of the bodies were recovered the same night, but the other was not found till the next night.

The burial was at Itasca Saturday morning. Mr. Brannen received word of the tragedy Friday and went immediately, arriving in time for the funeral.

Mrs. Huske had resided with her husband at Excelsior for a short time about twenty years ago.

SERVICES IN PROGRESS AT METHODIST CHURCH

Rev. J. B. Thresher, pastor, began a series of services at the Methodist church last Sunday morning which will continue through the present week and possibly next.

Attendance upon the services has been good from the beginning, and indications point to a successful meeting. The pastor is doing the preaching, and, having recently been in a number of similar meetings at other churches, is filled with enthusiasm and earnestness.

He has been delivering some strong sermons direct to church members, and, incidentally has dealt with the tendency to tolerate worldliness and the forces of evil. He has no patience with carnivals, horse-racing, gambling plans, dancing, moving pictures, etc., and has taken opportunity to pay his respects to these forms of worldliness.

A strong choir has been organized at the church, and excellent music is being rendered at each service.
